'Old West Fest' planned for St. John of the Cross' anniversary

A horse show will highlight the "Old West Fest" during the St. John of the Cross three-day 50th Anniversary celebration in Lemon Grove, September 22-24.

The 2200-family parish will host the event on the church and parish hall grounds at the intersection of Washington and Broadway and will offer ongoing entertainment including an escape artist, a magic show, puppet shows, dance acts and films for children throughout the festival.

Various bands will take turns performing onstage under the big parachute, including Innervision, Rhythm Wranglers and Corvettes. An unnamed band will entertain Saturday night. Both the Parish Hall and the Knights of Columbus Hall will be occupied by bingo and casino games.

The Mexican-American community and the Filipino-American community, both active participants in parish affairs, will offer their national foods in authentic forms. In addition, the barbecue food of the early Lemon Grove rodeos will be maintained by early church members.

Miniature golf on the church lawn, carnival booths and shooting galleries will be offered.

The highlight of the "Old West Fest" will be the horse show to be presented by the Poway Valley Riders Association from 10:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, and will show a drill team, jumpers, dressage and other routines on the meadow west of St. John's Church.

Imperial Savings branch manager explains new savings & loan business to customers

During the past few months, many customers have come into the Lemon Grove branch of Imperial Savings carrying a newspaper article with headlines about the woes of the savings and loan industry.

Marty Spuehler, Imperial's manager in Lemon Grove, along with employees in savings institutions throughout the country, was faced with near-panic public concern during the heated Congressional debate which ended when President Bush signed the landmark S & L bill on August 9, 1989.

San Diego-based Imperial Savings faced a double-whammy of negative publicity over the past year as the company attempted to come to grips with loan loss problems of its own, unrelated to the national S & L debate.

Since the fourth quarter of 1988, Imperial has taken nearly $40 million in loss reserves on a portfolio of auto loans purchased from a Los Angeles auto finance company, which declared bankruptcy last year.

In the midst of these losses, the parent company, Imperial Corporation of America, replaced President and Chief Executive Officer Kenneth Thygerson with Allan R. Tessler, a member of Imperial's Board of Directors. Shortly thereafter, the company announced a strategy to reduce its asset size by more than $2 billion in 1989 to increase its capital to assets ratio.

Despite a turbulent year for the parent company, Spuehler and his staff were able to retain approximately 94 percent of savings customers whose certificates of deposit (CDs) matured during the intense publicity about Imperial and other S&Ls.

Spuehler, who has been in the savings industry for more than seven years, credits professional standards for his success in a sometimes trying situation. "We have excellent training for our staff, which has helped us through this year," Spuehler said.

"We understand why customers are concerned. Reading the press reports, it might seem like a good idea to put your money in a mattress," he said. "We deal with customer concerns directly and honestly. That has gone a long way toward retaining confidence in our business."

Neil Pont, executive vice president in charge of Imperial Savings, said the modern financial institution required a high professional standard for its management. "Our customers are more sophisticated than ever before, and the economic and political issues which affect our lives are global, not just local or national," Pont said.

Spuehler's latest challenge is to explain what the new S & L law means to customers.

"We have been successful at explaining the problems which Imperial has faced over the past year," he said. "The more difficult topic to address is the future of the entire S & L business."

Grove Meandering

By Fran Rottet

Did you see the sky writing last week? About 5 p.m. on Thursday afternoon, a tiny silver speck began an hour-long message in the sky over Lemon Grove C H A D (heart shape) A D M I R E R S. By the time the last couple of letters were completed, the first part of the message had dissipated. Wonder how many miles each letter covered? Wonder what the meaning of the message was?

Pat Holland, local resident and watercolor artist, is the scheduled demonstrator for the Lemon Grove Art Association this month. The meeting will be held Tuesday, September 19, 7:15 p.m. in the recreation room (door on the south side of the building) of the Community Center, 3146 School Lane. The public is invited and refreshments are served.

United Church of Christ Congregational, 2770 Glebe Road, is planning a Second Annual Community Fair, Saturday, September 30, from Noon to 5 p.m., to include a Musical at 5 p.m. ($5 adults; $4 children).

A number of organizations (Sheriff's Department, Grossmont hospital with diabetic testing, Lemon Grove Review, Lemon Grove Recreation Center, San Diego Blood Bank, Grossmont Adult School, Soroptimist of Lemon Grove, to name a few) will be involved with festivities, demonstrations and food booths during the afternoon. The public is invited. Reverend Joan Pettis says, "It looks like we're going to have a larger turn-out this year. More booths, more activity and we hope, lots more people." So mark your calendar, folks.

And, don't forget to participate in the St. John of the Cross Annual Fall Festival, September 22, 23 and 24 on the church grounds at 8086 Broadway, Commemorative barbecue, game booths, craft booths, international booths and the "OK Corral" Beer Tavern, plus plenty of entertainment.

How many area drivers have been "caught" in a dangerous predicament by the trolley ("little red menace," as it is called by some?) On more than once occasion, drivers waiting for a green light to turn west onto Broadway from Lemon Grove Ave. have been stuck in the middle of the intersection because the light turned green, they began their turn, and down came the gates. The question is, what does one do? You can't drive through the gates. You sure can't sit in the intersection, blocking southbound traffic on Lemon Grove Ave.

Then there is the problem with waiting for the trolley to pass. Gates go up and the signal light gives you the turn arrow. BUT, before the turn arrow lights, down come the gates and you sit through another sequence as traffic piles up behind you. It took almost 15 minutes to get the turn negotiated the other morning, and it's a frustration we residents shouldn't have to endure. Surely there is a way to time gates and lights to alleviate the problem, or Come on down!

The Lemon Grove Recreation Department announced that due to the high demand to attend the taping of The Price is Right Show at CBS Studios in Burbank, two trips will be offered.

The first trip will be on Tuesday, October 10; the second on Tuesday, November 7. Both trips will depart at noon and return at 10 p.m. The bus will stop at Canter's Restaurant after the show for dinner at your own cost. The cost of $16 includes: round-trip transportation, refreshments on the bus, a tour escort, and admittance to the show.

Please call 464-1630 for more information. Deadline to register is Friday, September 29 for the first trip and Friday, October 29 for the second trip.

at least diminish it greatly?

Judie Leitner, spokesperson for the MTDB was the guest speaker at the Historical Society meeting on the 7th. I wonder if any of the above problems were brought to her attention. If they were and she had any answers, I'd like to pass them along to our readers.

St. Philip's Episcopal Church announces two new co-superintendents for the coming year. They are Sandra Thebeau and Barbara Franks. Also, Rally Day for the church is Sunday, September 18. Following the 10:15 a.m. services, teachers and staff will be commissioned, children will register for classes and a barbecue lunch will be provided.

If anyone has any news or information for this column give me a call at 464-4274 between noon and 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and we'll see what we can do about getting it in the paper. If you have questions, comments or concerns, I'd like to know about them too. Maybe I can help.

Senior Friends Peer program to begin

The Senior Friends Peer Volunteer program will begin a 12-week training in October at the Cedar Community Center, downtown San Diego. Senior Friends training is conducted by TELESIS, a non-profit educational consulting firm, and sponsored by the San Diego County Department of Health Services.

Training is free to program participants, who will learn how to listen to their peers, provide support and offer positive alternatives for dealing with problems,

Classes will focus on enhancement of counseling skills, development of community resources and education about senior health-related issues.

Enrollment in the program is open to anyone age 55 and up, who meets the qualifications:

- A desire to help others
- Ability to make and keep a commitment
- Willingness to learn new skills and ideas
- Appreciation of senior issues and community concern

Volunteers who have completed earlier trainings are using their skills in social service agencies, retirement homes and community centers throughout San Diego County.

Classes will start October 3 and continue on Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to noon at the Cedar Community Center, 320 Date Street, San Diego. Pre-registration is required.

From Where I Sit

By Frank Andrews

I Lost My Lady

It has been several months now and I'm still having a hard time writing this story.

One of the darkest times of my whole life was the dreadful day that I had to make that horrible decision to put my beloved Lady to sleep.

Lady, a most beautiful Sheltie, was a trained sheep dog from Colorado where I found her. I had the faithful, loving companionship of that incredible, near human creature for over 16 wonderful years.

Whenever I would sit down during my disability, she would always be at my left side. To get my attention, she would poke her cold, wet nose against my hand until I acknowledged her presence with a pat on her head.

She, too, had painful arthritis for the last few years that had gotten progressively worse with time. I dreaded the forthcoming day when I would have to weigh my decision between her suffering and my selfishness to keep her.

After her visit to Dr. Burns and with his most compassionate advice, the big decision was left entirely up to me. In just a few days, she stopped eating, vomited frequently and could hardly get up anymore by herself. That day she fell down out in our front yard. I just could not get her up or carry her.

I had to phone my wife at work to come home and help us. At that time, she and I had to make that dreadful decision, "We'll just have to have our Lady put to sleep." We rolled that beautiful Sheltie onto a sheet and carried her to my van.

As I walked away from her at the Vet's office, her big, piercing, brown eyes followed me out the door. I'm sure she wondered how I could leave her after our long love affair.

"She was just another dog," some people would say, because they have never been blessed as we have. Lady made living my past 16 years more tolerable with her most faithful love. We never referred to or thought of her as a "Dog," but more as a beloved member of the family.

The neighbors could sense our closeness as they observed from afar. They treated our sad situation like we had actually lost a member of the family. Some called, others sent sympathy cards and one even brought us food. The across-the-street neighbors came to see us, offered their condolences and also wanted to give us another Sheltie pup.

They meant well, but I don't believe I could ever accept another Lady into my life again.

Our lives have been changed in many ways with the passing of our beloved friend, and it is very hard to adjust. If there are dogs in heaven, I'm sure she will be there.

Thanks, God, for her most faithful love over the past short years.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

Jack McKeon's San Diego Padres are just too stubborn to quit. They just aren't about to throw in the towel or let the fickle hand of fate deal them down and dirty without scrapping back.

The sands in the 1989 baseball timeglass are shifting slowly down to the final few series and the Padres are still alive and scrambling. The dream is still alive. A lesson can be learned from watching the Padre faithful line up for tickets to the final home stand of the year. With so much on the line, every game figures to be a near sellout. And no wonder. The National League Western Division Championship is still to be decided.

McKeon sends his warriors into battle against the division leading Giants in a weekend series up in San Francisco tomorrow (Friday). The drain of the sands in the baseball clock dictate the Padres must win at least 2 of the 3 games, and a sweep would be sweeter.

To keep the San Diego heartbeat in its winning ragtime rhythm, KUSI TV channel 51 will send the action live back to our living rooms beginning at 7:35 p.m. Friday and 1:05 p.m. on Sunday. KUSI will also telecast Tuesday's game in Cincinnati and all of next weekend's 3-game series in Los Angeles. KFMB radio will carry everything live, all the time, as usual.

To get a measure of community feelings for the Padres, just cock an ear as you amble around town during game time.

You'll hear Jerry Coleman, Rick Monday, Bob Chandler or Ted Leitner bring the image of the game across the airwaves to willing ears in taverns, beauty parlors, barber shops, grocery stores, gas station, business offices, and just about everywhere people gather, even in the cop shop and the fire house.

It has been an up and down year for the Padres. They've been in last place and on every rung of the ladder up to second place during the first 153 games of the season. Now, with just 15 games to go, they are still in shooting distance of first place.

What better position could a scrappy team like the Padres wish to find themselves as the season draws to a close?

McKeon's crew finishes the regular season at home this year. They open the final home set with 3 against Cincinnati, then close out with 3 games against the Giants in a baseball PR man's dream come true—The top 2 teams battling for the division crown in the final series of the season. That certainly fills a field of old time baseball dreams.

And there's more. Padre fans will have a chance to say "good-bye" to Tim Flannery on Sept. 30. We will long remember how the scrappy infielder's all out style of play personifies what baseball is all about. He was always an all out kind of guy.

Tim is hanging 'em up after this campaign. He gave it all he had and went at full speed for 10 years. Tim is a class guy and rather than allow age and a sore hoof limit him to less than his best, he's stepping aside for younger and swifter colleagues.

There are faster and more talented players bringing honors to Padre colors, but there has never been a Padre, nor a player on any other team in the game, who played with a bigger heart.

There are still games to win, so let's get on with it. You can only win one at a time. But you can enjoy every one they play.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Weekends are happier if you put your Saturday newspaper aside until Monday. I have discovered. Saturday morning is the time to make weekend plans. The paycheck has been cashed and attention should focus on a couple of happy days with family or friends.

To get the day off properly—any day other than Saturday—reading the morning news is mandatory.

Intersperse reading the comics, doing the crossword puzzle and whatever news articles that catch the eye. But therein lies the problem. The more you read, the more distressed you become.

Our favorite daily newspaper is the San Diego Union. It is one of the nation's best. It covers capably a wide spectrum of doings of noteworthy people—some good, some bad.

And, as a long-time newsmen, I can attest that the Union's presentations are interesting and honest. Because some of it is disturbing is no fault of theirs. Newspapers write about people who are generally themselves disturbing.

Here are some of the items that made the point when the following people made the news: Captain Ronald Cervantes is San Diego's highest ranking firefighter. He has been dismissed for alleged drug abuse. Because firefighters are universally admired, it becomes hurtful to read about their misconduct.

And if that wasn't enough, another story dealt with Lanny Craig, a 34-year-old San Diego federal firefighter, who allegedly possessed drugs and it was also alleged that he took a 16-year-old Lemon Grove young man on a East County camping trip and molested him during the night.

We do not quarrel with the validity of these stories; it's just that disturb us. Others which did nothing to make the weekend pleasant included a story about former President Ronald Reagan's medical problems. The Saturday story told about his fall from a bucking horse on July 4 at a Mexican ranch south of Arizona.

Later, a hole had to be bored into the President's head to relieve fluid from his brain. Pressure from the fluid could damage or kill brain cells, doctors said.

Mr. Reagan's other bouts with medical care were also listed. In 1981, March 30, an operation removed a gun slug one inch from his heart. It was put there in an assassination attempt. In 1985, on July 13, surgeons removed a cancerous growth from his colon. He also had surgery for an enlarged prostate as well as surgery for skin cancer. All the operations were successful, which gave the only pleasantry in the article. Depressing!

There was also a story telling of the necessity for bringing State Insurance Commissioner Roxani Gillespie to an official hearing to require her to obey the will of the people who had voted in November to roll back auto insurance costs. It was said at the hearing that it "is not up to Roxani Gillespie to decide what part of the law she wants to enforce."

Disturbing also, was the story of one of California's outstanding heart surgeons—48-year-old Dr. Juan B. Suros VII, of Coronado, who allegedly stole $5 million of rare coins from a New York City museum. "I just have to have them," he was quoted as saying.

If convicted, he faces a 25-year penalty. The district attorney in the case said that a perjury charge is being considered due to "conflicting testimony before the grand jury."

And the long-running trial of the $80 million J. David & Co. case marches on with the IRS said to be charging Nancy Hoover Hunter with falsifying records. Defense attorney Richard Marmaro told the jury that she (Hunter) shared his (J. David's) office, she shared his bed, but did not share what was in his mind.

There were other articles which were equally timely, important, but depressing, such as: Two Families Tied By Tragedy Prepare for Trial (murder); General Dynamics Faces Rent Boost (12-fold); Midnight Visits by Strange Men Carrying Guns Terrorize Farmers; Newsome Pleads Not Guilty to Murder; Accident Kills 'Best Friend,' Mom Testifies; Grand Jury Indicts La Jolla Man in Meth Case; and Perjury Charges Pushed in Slaying of Camarena.

There are more, but what the heck. The mood was set soon after the first story was read. Almost anything seems more promising than more depressing headlines. An example came when the newspaper was put down—The head of the household ordered me to scrub down the walls of the shower.

The scrubbing was not created by the newspaper.

But any way you look at it, Saturdays can be lousy.

Letters from our readers

May we commend the Lemon Grove Review, The Spring Valley Bulletin and Frank Andrews in particular for his weekly column titled, "From Where I Sit."

Ever since subscribing to the Lemon Grove Review, we have looked forward each week to see what his subject would be, and we were especially gratified regarding the Sept. 7, 1989 issue. In fact, we venture a guess that there were many people who were proud of our local paper for their courage and boldness to take a stand on an issue that has been in the public eye for a long time throughout our nation—the subject of the constant pleas for funds by T.V. Evangelists whose lives do not match their teachings. These individuals are an affront to everyone who honors the name of Christ and such scandals hamper the work of all Christian organizations.

It is very refreshing to read such an article, complete with clever limerick!

Branch manager explains new savings & loan business to customers

Spuehler said the S&L law was really a step toward revolutionizing the entire financial services industry—a process that will continue throughout the next decade.

To most customers, it will be a silent revolution.

The only change most people will see in a local S&L is in the new decal for federally insured banks and S&Ls, replacing the symbol of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC), which will be eliminated. The new insurance fund symbol will be on most branches by late October.

Longer term changes will be less apparent, but will ultimately have a dramatic impact on the way banks and S&Ls do business:

- Fewer banks, fewer S&Ls and fewer full-service branches. Competition and the new S&L law will cause more financial companies to merge or be purchased by larger institutions. Some bank analysts expect the nation's 3,000 savings associations to be reduced to approximately 1,000 by the end of the century, while the more than 14,000 national banks also experience consolidation.

Banks and S&Ls will work to increase the size of each individual branch deposit base, thereby increasing the potential profitability of each location. Imperial has purchased or traded to increase the deposit accounts of several branches during the past year, helping to increase its share of the deposit market, while reducing overall expenses.

"One of the most significant events we have seen in the past decade in banking is an emphasis on the branch operating as if it were an independent business or a franchise," said Pont. "The branch office must know its customers and participate in the community as if it were the headquarters of the organization."

- More competition for the customer. Customers often have relationships with several financial institutions. Although fewer companies will be competing, the battle to get more of an individual customer's business will become increasingly intense.

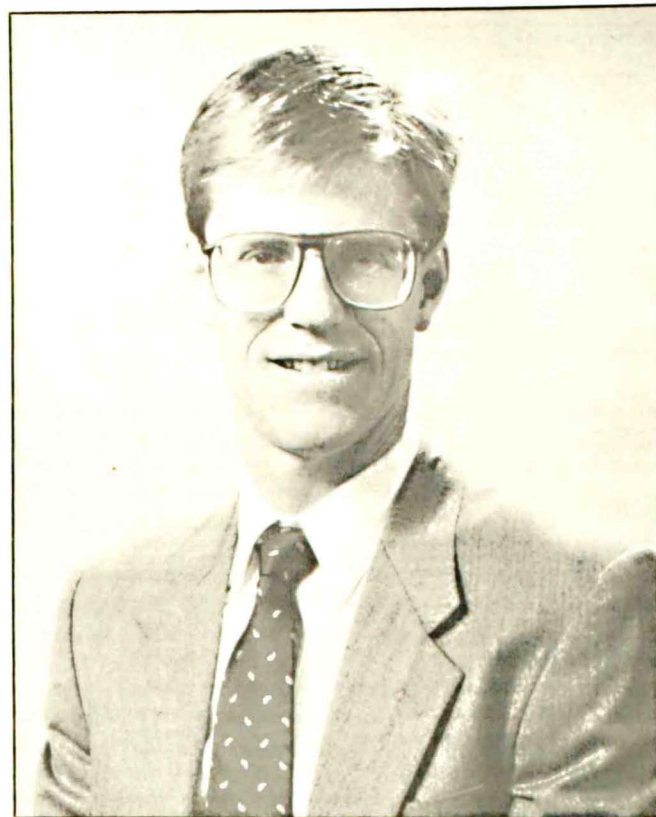

That may be good news for consumers, if the consumer can stand all of the attention.

"You will see competitive high rates and discounts on checking, savings, home loans, consumer loans and any other service offered by a financial institution," said Pont. "And financial institutions will become the best customer service organizations in the country."

- The aging of the Baby Boomer. The S&L industry has evolved around a customer who bought a home after World War II, had a family and a savings account, and saw the value of his real estate appreciate dramatically over the past 20 to 30 years.

Many of these older Americans have built up substantial savings as they enter retirement. Their children, however, most of whom were born during the "Baby Boom" from 1947-1964, do not yet fit into a pattern of savings behavior.

"The front end of the baby boom generation has only recently turned 40," said Spuehler. "It is not yet clear how this generation will plan for retirement or pay for their children's college education. We do know that the 'spending as if there is no tomorrow' pace has begun to slow. Baby boomers now believe that there will be a tomorrow and that they must prepare for it."

Imperial has recently introduced plans to attract this younger clientele, who may now be looking for the same financial services their parents sought and more. Spuehler urges younger customers who wish to plan for the financial requirements of their later years to diversify with both savings and investments.

"We often urge savings customers to discuss other products with our investment officer in the branch," he continued.

Imperial Savings is the nation's 15th largest savings association with more than 80 offices throughout California. Its Lemon Grove branch is located at 7770 Broadway.
